

within a door. On the third level you'll find an outdoor porch shaped a bit like a ship's bow, and nautical themed light fixtures indoors, all of which maximize on the stunning ocean view.

240 St. James Avenue
St. Simons Island
(Hamilton Landing)

Owned by one of Coastal Georgia's best-known artists, this home and studio strongly reflect the owner's personal style and sense of humor. The artist's touch is evident before one crosses the threshold. A sign at the antique French Country front door defines this house as an "Atelier," French for "artists's studio." Not to be mistaken for a lonely garret dwelling in Paris, this house/studio brims with life. Look for work by the artist/owner and other artisans well known in the Golden Isles.

321 Carnoustie
St. Simons Island
(Island Club)

This comfortable one-year-old home overlooking the 17th fairway of the Retreat Golf Club is a congenial reinterpretation of the Low Country design popular in the coastal areas of the South. It has the elements one would expect: a slightly raised foundation, dormer windows and comfortable porches. Rather than the typical board-and-batten siding, the house is finished in stucco. Inside, however, this is a thoroughly modern abode. Look for artful blending of modern conveniences and classic furnishings – an 1800 Maryland banquet table
