A New England or English cottage this is not, even though that is what might be expected when observing it from the street. Yes, it has dormer windows and simple lines, and a tabby stucco exterior to fit the coastal area, but inside it is full of surprises and unexpected treats. With John Bliven's renovation expertise, Beverly Olliff's keen eye for décor, and the owner's desire to open and modernize the interior space, the house is much different from how it began. Its former life entailed many small spaces with walls and doors hindering flow. What it is today, in the owner's own words, is a consummate bachelor's pad with room for family and guests upstairs when necessary.
