

Editor's Note

I read recently that Pablo Picasso was not allowed to roam alone around art galleries in his later years because he was caught once trying to improve on one of his old masterpieces.

Humans are a strangely discontented lot. We can never simply leave the thing without making a little adjustment here, a tweak there, adding a word, reshooting a photograph or just ripping it all apart and starting over again with a different design.

On the other hand, discontent has wrought great change in the world.

While world change wasn't quite our goal in remaking Golden Isles Magazine, redesign was, and we hope you see that in the pages of this issue.

Not just skin deep, our changes encompass every aspect of the magazine, from pictures to words.

Our goal is still the same, and that is to reflect all that is great about the Golden Isles – the good life we enjoy here, the beauty of the place and the wonderful people who inhabit this little corner of the world.

There truly is no place like our home, and we're proud to publish under the banner of the name "Golden Isles."

We hope you enjoy our new tack. Drop us a line and let us know what you think!
